Policies for Marijuana Legalization

Cannabis is set to be legalized this summer in Canada, and it's opening a new realm of questions for employers and staff. How might an employer respond if he or she is approached by an employee and asked, "Can I bring cannabis to the company party?"

"When it becomes legal, we might not have a huge spike of people showing up to work impaired, but there might be a shift in societal expectation of cannabis use," explained Jon Danyliw, an associate for Miller Thomson law firm in Saskatoon.

Danyliw spoke about cannabis in the workplace at the Construction Law Conference in Saskatoon in April. The message: It's a good time to implement a policy if there isn't one in place. Better yet, it's time to review the current policy. Read more

SCSA Expands App, Explores Virtual Reality

The SCSA is proud to make two announcements. First, in response to member feedback, five additional topics have been added to the Guide to OHS Legislation app that was released last September - Harassment; Working Alone; First Aid; Duties of the Employer, Supervisor, Contractor and Prime Contractor; and Protection for Electrical Workers. Thousands have taken advantage of this free app, downloading it from either the Apple or Google stores.

Second, the SCSA is excited to announce a new partnership with White Rabbit VR, a division of Twisted Pair Productions to develop 360 degree Virtual Reality experiences for the safety training environment in Saskatchewan. Read more
