COR[®] Program: Registration Process Updates

To assist companies in their progress toward achieving the nationally-recognized Certificate of Recognition (COR[®]) certification, and to enhance the integrity of the COR program, the SCSA has implemented updates to the registration process. Companies registering for COR must now achieve certification within 18 months by meeting two important milestones. [Visit \[www.scsaonline.ca/cor-updates\]\(http://www.scsaonline.ca/cor-updates\) for full details.](#)

You can attend either in person at Prairieland Park in Saskatoon or join the webinar. Registration is required for both.

Hearing-related injuries can last a lifetime

Collin Pullar, SCSA President, knows the story well. His dad, a master carpenter, was working in a small space on a concrete floor. In a moment of lapsed judgement, Pullar's dad forgot to insert earplugs and after pulling the trigger of a powder-actuated nail gun, felt massive pain in his left ear. Report captures how families heal from a workplace tragedy

A new report released by Threads of Life, the Association for Workplace Tragedy Family Support, details how a company's interaction with the family can either help or hinder emotional healing after a workplace tragedy. The report is based on a survey of Threads of Life family members. Read more and access the full report.
